CHRISTMAS IN CAMBRIDGE

You can't always count on a white Christmas in England, but you can count on the carolling that rings out from the great chapels of Cambridge. There is no finer English city to spend Christmas in – nor a hotel more inviting than University Arms.

This will be a winter experience full of memories, when seasonable fog wraps the dreaming colleges, the pubs are cosy, and the walks along the River Cam are full of soul.

After lunch, settle in for the Queen's speech and an evening of films and games in the Drawing Room.

After a day of revelry, wind down with a leisurely Boxing Day breakfast and time spent curled up by the fire in the wood-panelled library. We can also make recommendations for the best Boxing Day walks around the city and further afield, in the Cambridge fens.
